Dear Mr Simpson,

REGISTRATION BY THE ENGINEERING COUNCIL (UK)

I am pleased to confirm that as of the 14 October 2009 you were registered as a

Chartered Engineer (CEng) Registrant Number 569411

EC^{UK} welcomes your registration and hopes you will use your title or designatory letters on all appropriate occasions.

Registration reflects your standing as a professional engineer or technician. Please ensure that you uphold the profession and observe the Code of Conduct of your registering Institution.

Please, also, be sure to maintain your registration by continuing membership of an engineering Institution – and by paying your EC^{UK} fee through it. If you fail to do so, we will have to remove you from the Register and you will lose the right to use your designatory letters.

Our website at www.engc.org.uk is full of useful information about EC^{UK} and the profession, including links to our sister body, ETB, and the opportunity to subscribe to our quarterly electronic newsletter, "Register News".

Yours sincerely,

Data Protection Act 1998 - Important

Under the terms of the 1998 Data Protection Act you are entitled to know how personal information which you have provided to us may be used, and to exercise certain options about its use. The Engineering Council UK attaches great importance to respecting your wishes in this regard, and will use the personal information that you provided when applying for Registration only for the following purposes:

- To administer the Register and to run the Engineering Council UK
- To give registered engineers the opportunity to participate in schemes that support the Council's Charter
- To offer you the means to confirm your registration, such as a Professional Stamp
- To announce your Registration, by means of your name and Institution only, in the National Press and, for a limited period, on the Engineering Council UK website.

It will share this information only with its authorised service providers (including its archiving contractor) for the purposes stated above. It will also share this information with the professional bodies authorised to nominate individuals to the Engineering Council UK's Register; these organisations process your data for membership administration purposes and for business management purposes.
